THE ANNEXATION OF ALEXANDRIA TO THE DISTRICT. - As there has been considerable anxiety manifested to learn the provisions of the bill, introduced into the U. S. Senate, to annex Alexandria again to the District of Columbia, we publish the bill in full this evening, jurther remarking that the "gist" may be found in the 5th section.

A BILL to repeal an act entitled "An act to retrocade the county of Alexandria, in the District of Columbia, to the State of Virginia." and for other purposes.

Whereas the Constitution of the United States provides that Congress "shall exercise excluive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such District (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cossion of particular States, and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of Government of the United States;" and whereas ty an act of Congress approved July sixteenth, anno Domini seventeen hundred and ninety, ten miles square of territory was accepted from the States of Maryland and Virginia, as the permanent seat of government, constituting what was subsequently known as the District of Columbia, which when so accepted and defined, all jurisdiction over the same was, by the Constitution, forever vested in Congress, whose duty it was then, and forever after, to preserve unviolated and free from all control whatsoever. save that of Congress; and whereas experience derived from the recent rebellion, has demonstrated the wisdom of preserving such ten miles square under the exclusive control of Congress, both for military and civil purposes, and for the defence of the capital; and whereas, by an act of Congress approved July ninth, anno Domini eighteen hundred and forty-six, that portion of said ten miles square lying south of the Potomac was ceded back to the State of Virginia, in violation of the intent and meaning of the Constitution of the United States, and to the great peril of the capital as aforesaid: Therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the act of Congress approved July ninth, anno Domisi eighteen hundred and forty six, retroceding to the State of Virginia that portion of the district ten miles square, as provided by the Constitution, known as the District of Columbia, be, and the same is hereby, henceforth and forever repealed and declared null and void, and that the jurisdiction of Congress, and the laws provided for the District of Columbia be, and the same are hereby, put in force, as same as if said act of retrocession had never been passed.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That private and personal property shall not be affected by this act, so far as the rights of parties are concerned; and all public property whereoff the United States were possessed at the time of the retrocession of said portion of the District of Columbia to the State of Virginia shall, from and after the passage of this act, be vested in the United States government, any law, act, or conveyance to the contrary notwithby purchase or otherwise, any and all further property, real or personal, in said portion of the District of Columbia, as may be deemed necessary for public use.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That all suits and actions at law, civil or criminal, shall from and after the passage of this act be conducted and determined according to the laws, rules, and regulations enacted and provided by Congress for the District of Columbia, excepting causes wherein final judgment, decree or sentence shall have been pronounced or passed; in such causes the final satisfaction of such judgments or decrees will be in accordance with the laws in force in the State of Virginia. But all causes wherein final judgment or decree shall not have been passed or prenounced, shall be in future conducted and determined as provided by this act. taxes and revenues assessable and collectible on property, real or personal, in said portion of | DOUBLE SHOVEL PLOWS. the District of Columbia south of the Potomae, shall from and after the passage of this act, be rated, collected, and applied according to the existing or future laws of Congress governing the District of Columbia.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act all civil offices in said portion of the District of Columbia south of the Potomae, in the city of Alexandria and what is known as the county of Alexandria, shall be declared vacant; and the vacancies so created shall be filled by new appointments or elections, to be made and held under the laws, regulations, and qualifications provided by Congress for elections and electors in the District of Columbia.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That this act shall be in force from and after its passage. APRIL, APRIL,
